What is the Regional Express Bus (REB) Study?

In 2003, Caltrans, in partnership with bay area transit agencies, the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, and the University of California Transportation Center, began the Regional Express Bus (REB) study to develop a System Plan for a seamless, regional fast bus service throughout the Bay Area. The study will identify current and potential express bus services to move residents more quickly and conveniently to and from home, work, and other destinations.

What is Express Bus Service?
